Icebreakers

Communication | Engaging people | Generating enthusiasm

01

Who am I?

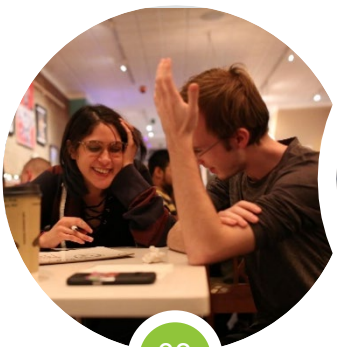

The purpose of this game is for each participant to discover the personality that is written on their own back by asking others yes or no stereotype-based questions about their personalities.

02

Corporate Dating

A quick and easy icebreaker designed for all team members to have the opportunity to briefly meet each other. It generates lots of fun and laughter, and it's physical in the sense that people keep moving around the room every couple of minutes.

03

Office Trivia

The scope of this game is to quickly identify co-workers based on limited and fun information about their professional and personal life and interests. The hints the facilitators will gradually offer about each team member will surely add new interesting pieces to everyone's puzzle.

04

Haka

Made famous worldwide by the New Zealand rugby team, Haka is an ancient and sacred dance. It has been used for centuries to motivate and unite people to face challenges head-on with a positive mental attitude. It's still as powerful today, surprising, motivating, uniting your team to grow stronger together.
